The Sasol Glendower Wader Bash

At the magnificent West Coast National Park

An impressive birding experience

History

The Wader Bash weekend and competition has been running successfully for four years now, and is clearly becoming an annual draw card for birders countrywide, with some folks having attended all four. The event has BLSA and SANParks support. All excess income is spent on Honorary Rangers' Park birding projects. We even have a beginners' category.

Wader Bash Positioning

- The West Coast National Park (WCNP) is a RAMSAR wetlands site of international importance.
- The WCNP is the first stop along the now famous Flamingo Birding Route, the premier birding venue route for the West Coast.
- The lagoon is a jewel worth visiting and a favoured birding site for famous and expert birders.
- WCNP boasts >316 bird species and the largest number of breeding pairs of Black Harriers in the world.
- On site accommodation is available.
